This week in Flamingos We have had an exciting and busy week again. Geography has seen us travelling across the world to Africa where we have made beautiful collages of the continent. We have worked hard with The Little Red Hen and put back the correct punctuation in her story. Maths has been a real challenge with the development of resilience in working on place value. We have carried out investigations into exercise and decided it is exhausting! Have fun for the weekend and don't forget those tricky spellings!

Eaton Vale Residential As a school we are proud of the way pupils from Eagles conducted themselves on last week's residential. They showed so many skills from the Joy Of Not Knowing, particularly resilience and collaboration. It was wonderful to observe such bravery and support, as they tackled an incredible number of adventurous challenges in a short space of time.

Well done.
